Enjoy a Tour to Firefly, home of British playwright Noel Coward - and now a museum offering spectacular views of Jamaica's coastline - when you book three nights at Goldeneye and pay with your Visa card.

Be shaken - not stirred - by the splendor of Goldeneye, James Bond's birthplace. Dashing 007 originated at this 15-acre seaside hideaway, which blossomed around the home of Ian Fleming, who wrote 13 spy novels here. Today, Fleming's retreat is a boutique resort laced with beaches, tropical forest, caves and secluded nooks. Intimate and informal, this idyll - four villas on a sea bluff, one overlooking a cove - attracts lovers of luxury.
