EXPERIENCE THE PRIVILEGED LIFE.

Dear Valued Client

Welcome to the inaugural issue of our quarterly Privilege Times.

The need for instant gratification has been fuelled by the Internet Age. We want the latest information, in the least amount of time. With this in mind, Privilege Times was conceived, placing you at the forefront of the latest financial and lifestyle highlights.

In this issue, we update you on the current global economic situation. As time is of essence to you, we have sifted out issues we believed would be of utmost concern to you.

The recent global equity rally since March is news you just can't miss. So is the present sizzling hot Singapore residential property market. Prices of luxury condominiums, the segment worst hit by the recession, are now creating new highs. Is the resurgence of the property craze an indication of an economic recovery? Our experts are here to shed light. Jimmy Koh, our Head of Economic–Treasury Research, navigates us through the global financial storm in "Wealth Speaks" (Page 3). We have also gathered our experts from UOB Asset Management to share with us key insights of the markets and question if this rally is sustainable in "Prime Market Feeds" (Page 4).

Certainly, when it comes to worthy investments, time will separate the wheat from the chaff. Good investments, with strong fundamentals, withstand the test of time. It will be helpful for us to stay focused on our financial objectives despite the current challenges. Depending on your risk appetite and taking into account the current economic climate, we have selected some key products in "Product Focus" (Page 5) for your consideration.

You would agree – health comes first. That is why we have collaborated with ParkwayHealth, which owns a group of reputable hospitals like Gleneagles and Mount Elizabeth, to offer you a host of exclusive healthcare privileges. A getaway is the best way to rejuvenate oneself; now you can enjoy a luxurious escape to Banyan Tree Maldives Vabbinfaru, with our compliments! Read up on these exclusive offers within this issue of Privilege Times.

Finally, in the coming quarter, you will find that your Relationship Manager will be introducing you to the UOB Client Engagement Journey – a distinct "UOB way" of engagement with our clients. This process aims to facilitate meaningful engagements for you and your Relationship Manager, and in turn, enhancing your overall banking experience with us. Your Relationship Manager will be most delighted to take you on the UOB Client Engagement Journey, ask us about it today!

Meanwhile, sit back, have a cup of coffee and enjoy a good read!

Yours sincerely

Eddie Khoo

WEALTH SPEAKS

Mr. Jimmy Koh Head of Economic-Treasury Research Global Markets & Investment Management

It may sound like an old broken record, but... "Don't put all your eggs in one basket!"

Six months ago, it was the fear of losing everything. Now, it is the fear of losing out in the run. Then, it was the worst crisis since the Great Depression. Today, there are queues at property launches. So, is the world economy really getting better? Is this a dead cat bounce, or as some may say "cyclical bull in a structural bear"? How do we reconcile the dichotomy that the real economy is only just bottoming out, while asset prices are running away?

What is the investment outlook? The Economy...

Policy makers are of the opinion that the recovery will be gradual, and we also think likewise. Unlike the Asian crisis, where 10% of global GDP was in trouble, today, 60-70% of global GDP is struggling. Also, this is not a traditional economic crisis; it stems from problems in the banking world. Although the Asian banking industry does not have similar structural issues to the West, Asian economies cannot be spared from the economic fall-out. Based on previous episodes, rebuilding of banking balance sheets needs time.

The Financial Markets...

As for the surge in assets prices, whether it is equities or properties, our take is that the worst is behind us; or at least maximum fear is over. Shocks à la Lehman-failure are statistically known as 'Black Swan'<sup>[1]</sup> occurrences – that is, something unknown and unpredictable. They led to a collapse in confidence, and to liquidity and credit drying up in the financial markets. However, swift and broad policy responses have brought stability back to the system – reflected by the narrowing spread between Fed funds and LIBOR rates. The recent price action is reflecting 'normalisation' rather than 'recovery', albeit the tendency for financial prices to overshoot. Barring major shocks, we should continue to see 'normality' working through the global system.

Indeed, whether it was post 1929 Great Depression, 1974-75 Stagflation, or 1997-98 Asian Crisis, the recovery path was sustained for about 12 months. Against a rock bottom on 9 March 2009 (for most equities), a run should hold till year-end, barring new shocks. Beyond that, investors will have to watch if this is just 'normalisation' or 'recovery'. It remains to be seen, whether this is merely 'inventory rebuilding' or 'real demand' finally kicking in.

What should investors do? Diversify your investments.

Realistically, it is impossible to pick levels. The market today is dominated by liquidity and sentiment, which are impossible to quantify. The episode brings back to mind the principle of diversification across various assets classes such as equities, bonds, currencies and commodities – at the risk of sounding like a broken record.

Unless you are already in the market, the easy money has been made. From here, it is going to be a little tricky, and equity investment will not be a smooth ride. For risk-takers who are willing to take a small exposure to equities, select corporates that are cash-rich, have quality earnings, and are low-geared.

After the absolute 'fear' post-Lehman, we are back in a more 'balanced' market – which means that doing nothing is not exactly the optimal strategy. Perhaps it is timely to review your long-term financial objectives with our Relationship Managers and consider if your investment strategy and your portfolio are aligned. Ensure your investments are well-diversified to cushion potential downside risks and take advantage of any potential opportunities that could arise.

PRIME MARKET FEEDS

Insights from UOB Asset Management*: Quarterly Investment Outlook and Asset Allocation

A sustainable recovery in the equity markets

Equity markets have enjoyed a strong rally since March and were consolidating their gains as we move through the third quarter. In our view, the recovery in equity markets that we have seen is a genuine one and we believe that the rally can be extended.

We believe that Asian equity markets have the strong potential to outperform the developed markets in this new cycle. US and European banks need to reduce their still high levels of debt and this is likely to mean muted economic growth in the developed economies for some time. In contrast, Asia's banking system is healthy and Asia's growth prospects<sup>[1]</sup> continue to be among the best in the world. An environment of very low interest rates is also boosting liquidity in Asia and in our opinion, rising liquidity is likely to translate into a reflation of asset prices.

There are of course risks ahead. The huge supply of government debt that is forthcoming from the large fiscal programmes is already creating headwinds for the bond market. If bond yields rise too quickly, the fragile economic recovery could be jeopardised. There are also concerns about inflation picking up again, especially if commodity prices rise further. Concerns about the bond market and inflation could mean that exchange rates become volatile.

We have moved to an overweight position in Equities and Commodities and are underweight in Bonds. In Equities, we continue to prefer Emerging Markets over the next one to two years, as they are showing clear signs of decoupling from the Developed Markets. In the short-term, we would expect markets like the US, Europe and Japan, that have lagged significantly over the past couple of quarters, to start to catch up. In Bonds, we continue to prefer Investment Grade bonds. In Commodities, we stay overweight in Gold and Energy.

PAST EVENT

INFINITE GOLFING EXPERIENCE

To reward our valued clients, UOB Privilege Banking and UOB Visa Infinite Card jointly hosted the annual Visa Access Golf Experience amidst the lush greenery of Sentosa Golf Club on 4 June 2009.

Participants were given quick tips at a golf clinic conducted by golf professionals before the start of the game. The highlight of the game was the grand prize – the sleek Porsche Cayman S Sport for the skillful hole-in-one player at Hole 2. Refreshment treats such as decadent ice cream and cooling vodka drinks were also located at designated holes to help our clients beat the hot tropical heat.

In the evening, participants were invited to the ballroom of Sentosa Golf Club where gastronomic delights and fine wine awaited. Artiste Allan Wu, who was the presenter for the evening, dazzled the participants with entertaining banter during the prize presentations. If the smiles on the faces of all were anything to go by, the event marked another infinitely successful networking session for clients and Relationship Managers.
